

Neuron Structure
What are the various structures of the neuron?

What
In the diagram below, identify the structures of the neuron and label them. The diagram shows a neuron with its various parts labeled. The diagram is a cross-section of a neuron, showing the cell body (soma) with the nucleus, dendrites, and an axon. The axon is covered by a myelin sheath, and the axon terminals are shown at the end.

Model 1 - Parts of a Neuron

1. Model 1 is an illustration of a neuron. Label each of the structures in the diagram with the following names:

Cell body	Soma
Dendrites	Myelin
Axon	Axon terminals

2. Which structure in the neuron is labeled? (A small circle is highlighted in the diagram. Label this part with the name of the structure.)

The structure is the nucleus.

3. How does the signal travel through the neuron?

The signal travels from the dendrites to the cell body, then down the axon, and finally to the axon terminals.
